In collaboration with Troxell Architecture, Workplace Architecture + Design played a pivotal role in conceptualizing and programming the pioneering LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) certified building in Forsyth County. This innovative endeavor marked a significant milestone in the region's sustainability efforts, underscoring a commitment to environmental stewardship and energy efficiency.

Beyond design, Workplace A+D meticulously curated building materials and furnishings to align with LEED criteria, ensuring that every aspect of the project adhered to sustainable principles. Additionally, Workplace A+D assumed responsibility for managing the intricate documentation required for LEED certification, navigating the rigorous evaluation process with precision and expertise.
