In the heart of Union County, a transformative endeavor has taken shape, bringing with it the promise of innovation, collaboration, economic growth, and endless opportunity. South Piedmont Community College's new 47,000 square foot facility, a visionary reality, is more than just a physical space; it's a dynamic and inclusive hub designed to empower entrepreneurs and businesses. The facility sits at the entrance to SPCC's OCH Campus, welcoming students and the community and offering coworking space for members to work and exchange ideas, training space for workshops, conference space for large entrepreneurial, industry and community events, and even a podcast/videography studio for creatives and business owners to share their stories.
